Emily attended the University of South Florida where she earned a Bachelors degree in biology and a Masters degree in science education with a focus on science learning that occurs outside the traditional classroom. She is a scuba diver and an avid angler, targeting mostly inshore species from her kayak.