

Alex Miller is the Staff Economist for the Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission in Ocean Springs. Mr. Miller is charged with coordinating the Fisheries Economics Program for the Commission in an effort to enhance the use of economics in the fisheries management process in the Gulf. Mr. Miller has previously worked for the Smithsonian Institution, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and the Louis Berger Group, Inc. Mr. Miller completed his Master's of Science degree in Applied Economics from Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Virginia. His thesis research received the International Association of Aquaculture Economics and Management best Master's thesis award in 2010. Prior to graduate school, Mr. Miller received undergraduate degrees in Fisheries Science and Environmental Policy and Planning, also from Virginia Tech.

